

Do you feel a need for this research? Why?	How do you think this research will empower the Muslim community?	How do you think this research will benefit you personally?	Who and where do you feel we need to target in order to create an impact through this research?	explored in creating a difference in the community through this research?	How has today's session changed your understanding of organ transplantation in Islam?
Yes because there is lack of knowledge on this topic.	By helping them to gain more knowledge about organ donation and to help them be future donors without any culture bias.	I feel I have already learnt so much from attending the workshop by learning about the various scholarly fatwas that has been said in the past etc it is also very interesting to hear various views from people of different ages, communities and backgrounds.	It has to be to the Asian communities through the masjids, their favourite channels and social medi in general.	Maybe by having individual focus groups by individual groups like Pakistanis, Bengalis etc in order to pick up how different each groups from different countries think.	I didn't realise it was permissible.
To understand the issues felt important by the Muslim communities	By establishing abetter understanding people can make informed choices	I will have a clear understanding of the issues and make a choice that I feel comfortable with	There is much needed education within our communities for adults and young people through Mosques, supplementary schools, community based organisations, schools, colleges, universities, with large BME populations	This largely depend on the findings. There will need to be a strategy to address the different levels of needs from advising the Welsh Government on how it should approach communication of such matters that impact on communities with limited language needs to engaging local imams through (Muslim Council of Wales) in taking an educating and informing role and local community based organisations facilitating access to local community groups.	The session provided greater depth, though I would like to know more about the reasons for Fatwa's on both sides of the argument

yes, there is so little information out there regarding organ donation and a lot of people are confused by this matter. It's important that Welsh Muslims have an opportunity to discuss their views	it will give them better understanding of the situation and help them to choose if they want to donate organs or not.	I believe I will be able to better inform my friends and family on this matter and also make a decision on organ donation that won't have any negative effect on my religious beliefs	we need to target the schools and places of religious worship as we need to educate people on the rulings of organ transplantation. there is so many different layers overlapping such as culture, religion, ethical and moral views that it can become very confusing. people need to know the facts so they can make an informed decision on the matter.	not really sure of the question sorry, we definitely need to educate people	before the session I was very much 'opt in' however listening to others has confused me a bit, as suggestions where made that the body would feel pain when the organs are being removed. I think I will need to do a bit more research into this matter so I am completely satisfied with the decision
Yes	Always good to have an Islamic perspective on important ethical social issues	Muslims of all ages. .schools mosques	Enable an open discussion about organ donation	Philosophical ethical religious issues that I was unaware of
