

The Templars in Shropshire and Staffordshire: 1311–14 (years 5 to 7)

For the Templars' properties in Shropshire and Staffordshire, see the introduction to the transcription of years 1 and 2.

The accounts to 1313 are preserved at:

E 358/18 rot. 54. Richard de Hailey (Shrops. & Staffs.), custos of Lydeley; Longestanton, Holpreve, church of Cardington in Shropshire and the manor of Keel in Staffs. Handover to Hospital; covers 3 years, listed separately. This follows Thomas de Raleigh for Devon, and is followed by William Marmion for Aslackby in Lincs.

E 358/19 rot. 36. Richard of Harleye (Salop & Staffs.) – years 5, 6, 7 and handover to Hospital. Lydley, Longstaunton, Holtprene, church of Cardington in Salop and manor of Keel. The account follows John of Bloxham for Oxon, Berks, Wilts and Northants and is followed by Edmund de Burnham for Bucks, which also includes the handover to the Hospital.

Lydeleie

[As the stock was sold in year one, income from milk and wool has vanished, and there are far fewer workers on the estate. The workers no longer receive a benefit in kind in autumn but they did receive food and drink in winter, in addition to potage. The manor is still receiving some income from the sale of freestone from the quarry, and the dovecote and pasture in the main manor are now making money. The water mill is still in operation. One of the draught horses fell ill and died despite being treated by a professional farrier. The barn roof needed repair. The crops grown have changed a little to include vetch and mixtil (maslin: a mixture of grains, possibly including rye and wheat). Three acres of hay were mowed and 141 acres of wheat, 24.5 acres of mixtil, 80 acres of oats and 6 acres of peas and vetch were harvested – a total of 254.5 acres under production.]

³ These revenues are the same as in year one.

⁴ The water mill at Lydley is still in operation, with the same rent as in year one.

⁵ Still producing freestone from the quarry, but the income has increased by 6d since year one.

⁶ Since year one, the dovecote has been stocked and is now producing income, while the grazing in the pasturage in the chief dwelling house or messuage is no longer being consumed by the manor's own stock as most of the stock were sold in year one.

⁷ Vesta = vetch.

⁸ In year one the manor repaid 3 s 10 d, so the payment has increased.

⁹ A farrier, caring for the sick draught horse.

⁸² Oldbury is a common place name in England: this could be in Gloucestershire, Oxfordshire or Warwickshire (north-east of Birmingham, now in the West Midlands), there are also Oldburies in Shropshire and Worcestershire. But which is meant here?
